

TWO BOYS IN 'TEENS MET TRAGIC DEATHS SUNDAY

REPORT FINDING OF AMUNDSEN'S BODY IN OCEAN

No Confirmation, However: Nobile Cruise is Criticized

BULLETIN

(By The Associated Press)
Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, July 2—(AP)—The powerful Russian ice-breaker Krassin, which has been battering her way along the northwest coast of Northeast Land toward the Nobile radi party, has been bailed by heavy ice blocking her way and will now try to make her way through Hinlopen Strait along the southern and eastern coast of Northeast Land to the stranded party.

BULLETIN
Moscow, July 2—(AP)—The Russian ice breaker Krassin, which has been fighting its way through ice floes for several weeks in an effort to reach the stranded men of the dirigible Italia near Foye Island off Northeast Land, today reported that it had reached a point 80 miles from that region.

London, July 2—(AP)—A Paris dispatch to the Echange Telegraph Co. reports that according to messages received from Oslo the body of Captain Roald Amundsen has been found in the sea off Norway. The report lacks official confirmation.

Road Amundsen, discoverer of the South Pole and noted Arctic explorer, left Norway on June 18 with Lieut. Albert, a noted Norwegian explorer, and a French crew in a dirigible to search for Gen. Umberto Nobile, then stranded with five companions off Northeast Land. General Nobile has since been rescued by Lieut. Lundborg, Swedish flier, and is now aboard the base ship Citta di Milano off Northern Spitzbergen.

Amundsen's decision to help in the search for Nobile was all the more dramatic as he and the Italian dirigible expert had been at odds ever since their famous dirigible flight in the Norge over the North Pole.

The pilot of the French seaplane was Commander Rene Guilbaud and the three other members of the crew were Lieut. Albert, de Cuverville, Emile Valette, radio operator, and Gilbert Brazy, mechanic.

London, July 2—(AP)—With two airplane rescue expeditions missing criticism of General Umberto Nobile's fatal Polar flight and the conduct of relief operations was being voiced today.

Two weeks ago Roald Amundsen and five other men started out in a French seaplane to join in the rescue work and disappeared. On Friday the Russian airman Babushkin hopped off from the Soviet icebreaker Kaligin in the Polar seas only to be swallowed up by the Arctic.

A Moscow dispatch to the Daily Express today quoted Sergi Kameneff, Inspector General of the Red Army, as charging that Nobile's base ship, the Citta di Milano, had failed to cooperate in the rescue work. He said the base ship had neglected to inform the Malignin that the position of the five castaways of the Italia and the Swedish airman, Lieutenant Lundborg had been changed by the drift of the ice in time to warn Babushkin before he started on his flight to them.

Strong Criticism

Kameneff, who is one of the leaders of the Soviet relief committee, made a statement to the Moscow newspaper Izvestia in which he condemned "the shameful lack of coordination" of the various expeditions. He contended that Amundsen ought to have been put in charge of a centralized relief organization. He believed that rescue could be accomplished only by cooperation between Soviet ice breakers and Swedish airplanes.

The Berlin newspaper Montag Morgen today printed a dispatch from its Copenhagen correspondent in which it said that a large number of Arctic explorers arriving at Tromsø from the meeting of explorers at Leningrad were reported to have denounced the Nobile expedition.

Called Dark Blot

Peter Freuchen, a Danish explorer, was quoted as saying, "It was not a case of tragedy only, but Nobile's expedition was the darkest blot in the annals of Arctic exploration. Nobile meeting both technical and moral defeat and discrediting entirely Arctic exploration by means of airships."

Experts in northern Norway believed that the French seaplane was probably forced down in stormy conditions and collapsed upon hitting the waves. This would have meant a speedy end on all board.

Amundsen's friends remarked that such a finish would have been in accordance with his own wishes.

DOCTOR AND TWO GIRLS MEET DEATH IN AIRPLANE ACCIDENT AT CLINTON, IA., YESTERDAY

Miss Lucille Trotter of this city witnessed the airplane accident described in the following dispatch.

Clinton, Ia., July 2—(AP)—Three persons were killed Sunday afternoon when an airplane crashed on the new links of the Clinton Golf course. The dead are:
Dr. Homer K. Lambert, the pilot; his daughter Betty, 4, both of Clinton; and Dr. Lambert's niece, Shirley Lambert, 14, of Toledo, O.
Dr. Lambert, who learned to fly during the World War, owned the plane, and had taken off from the aviation field on the Lincoln highway, five miles out of Clinton. Five hundred feet in the air, the motor stalled, and the plane crashed in attempting a forced landing.

Dr. Lambert's wife and mother saw the crash from the Clinton Country Club. The plane landed across the road from the present golf course, where new links are being planned.
Dr. Lambert, who formerly lived at Geneseo, Ill., had been a resident of Clinton two months. He had purchased an optical practice of the late Dr. James Delange.

AUTHOR OF "THE BAT" DROWNS IN PARIS LAST EVE

Crowd on Beach Saw Playwright Meet Tragic Death

Nice, France, July 2—(AP)—Avery Hopwood, American playwright, was drowned within sight of life savers and while the crowd on the beach watched last night at Juan-les-Pins on the French Riviera.

Hopwood, apparently in good health, went swimming at 8 o'clock, soon after dinner. He collapsed when far from the shore and drowned before help could reach him.

Graduating from the University of Michigan in 1905, Avery Hopwood went to New York as special correspondent for the Cleveland Leader and almost immediately sold his first play, "Clothes," written in collaboration with Channing Pollock and produced in 1906. He was twenty-four years old at the time, having been born in Cleveland in 1882.

From that time forward he was one of the most prolific playwrights, although in the last two or three seasons he had been an infrequent contributor to the Broadway stage.
His best known plays were "Fair Weather," "The Gold Diggers," and "The Bat," written in collaboration with Mary Roberts Rinehart. "The Bat," was one of the biggest money makers ever staged.

SEAPLANE FALLS

Newport, R. I., July 2—(AP)—Navy seaplane from the U. S. S. Concord went into a nose dive and dropped from a great height into the water here this afternoon. It was feared the occupants were drowned.

CHAS. BUSH, AGED 15, DROWNS WHILE PARENTS LOOK ON

North Side High School Boy Suffered Cramps While in Bathing

Rock river at this point, claimed its first victim of the summer season, Sunday afternoon about 3:30 when Charles Richard Bush, 15 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bush, 805 Palmyra avenue, met a tragic death by being drowned before the eyes of his parents and several others about three miles west of the city. He, with two companions, Wilbur Harms and Robert Bollman had rowed out a distance of about 300 feet from the north bank of the river for a swim, when he was seized with a cramp in the left side and despite his heroic effort to swim to shore, sank beneath the surface and was drowned in about ten feet of water. Charles was considered a very good swimmer and was spending the afternoon at the McGinnis cottage west of the city with his parents and others. With his two companions the boys set out in a boat, dressed in their bathing suits to take a swim. They rowed out a distance of about 300 feet, on the way, where they anchored the boat and all entered the water.

Called For Help
Within a very few minutes his cries for help were heard by those at the cottage on shore and his companions. His father ran to the water's edge and called instructions to him as the trio started swimming for the shore. He succeeded in swimming to almost 40 feet from the shore when he gasped that he could not make it and sank. When the body was recovered about two hours later, the entire left side was cramped, which accounted for his calling for aid shortly after entering the water.

Herbert W. Harms, who with his family was camping at the McGinnis cottage, jumped into the river but was soon in up to his depth and being unable to swim, was forced to leave the river. The only boat in that particular vicinity was the one which the three boys had rowed out near the middle of the river and anchored while they enjoyed their swim.

Coroner Frank M. Banker conducted an inquest over the remains this morning at 10:30 at the Jones funeral home. Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber testified to having recovered the body about two hours after the drowning with the assistance of Orville McGinnis, William Covert, who was also present at the cottage was unable to swim but telephoned for grappling hooks, the pulmotor and physicians immediately following the tragedy.

Was H. S. Student
Physicians and members of the camping party worked for some time in an effort to resuscitate the young victim. Stimulants were injected into the heart muscles and all that could be done was tried in an effort to restore life, but without avail.

The deceased was a student in the north side high school and was very popular in his classes. He celebrated his fifteenth birthday anniversary one week prior to the tragedy which cost his young life. He was born in Dixon, June 24, 1913, and had lived here all his life. He is survived by the grief-stricken parents and two brothers, Donald and Russell at home. Funeral services will be conducted from the family residence 805 Palmyra avenue, Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Rev. A. Turley Stephenson, pastor of the First Methodist church officiating, and with interment in Oakwood.

DIXON TRUCK AND ITS LOAD OF HOUSEHOLD GOODS DESTROYED BY FIRE IN DEKALB MISHAP

While attempting to pass a farmer's grain wagon driven by Arthur Edwards, living east of DeKalb, Ed. Brotsch, a truck driver from Dixon, demolished the wagon, injured Mr. Edwards and suffered the loss of the truck and its contents as it tipped over and was destroyed by fire, says Saturday's DeKalb Chronicle, which continues:
The accident happened near the Clausen farm east of DeKalb Friday night. Mr. Edwards was brought to the city hospital. The truck was the property of Pres Clark of Dixon.

According to the state motorcycle officers who were called to the scene when the report was received at the police station for the fire department and the ambulance, both the Dixon truck and Mr. Edwards were driving west on the highway. The driver, Brotsch, attempted to pass the wagon, and as he got into the other traffic lane, saw a big car approaching at a fast rate of speed. He immediately attempted to get back into his own traffic lane again, and in doing so, struck the wagon.

Many Planes in Hunt
Fellow pilots from the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, and an Army blimp from Scott Field, Belleville, Ill., had searched vainly over the spot where the plane was found, but were unable to see the wreckage because of low visibility. Twenty planes were engaged in the search.

FARMER'S SON IS KILLED BY SHOT FROM SMALL GUN

Weapon Was in Hands of Earl Heatherington of Dixon

BOY AGED 9, KILLED
Beardstown, Ill., July 2—(AP)—A Coroner's investigation was instituted here today into the death of Harry Leroy Burch, 9 who was instantly killed yesterday when he leaped from the running board of a car driven by John Adkins of Beardstown into the path of another automobile driven by Floyd M. Condit, mayor here.
Kenneth Brierston, aged 13, son of Mrs. Frank Marshall, who resides about three miles south of Dixon near the Preston school, was killed almost instantly Sunday morning about 9 o'clock, when an old 22 caliber rifle in the hands of Earl Heatherington of this city, was discharged accidentally, the bullet penetrating the victim's brain at a point about an inch back of the left ear.

Heatherington, who has been employed at the Marshall farm, and Kenneth had planned on a trip to a neighbors to shoot pigeons and were to use the rifle. Kenneth discovered that the ram rod which he used for ejecting the exploded shells was bent and went to the barn to straighten it and his eight year old step-sister, Frances accompanied him. He was engaged in straightening the ram rod in a vice when Heatherington entered the barn and took the rifle from the work bench.

Almost instantly the gun exploded, the bullet striking Kenneth in the head just back of the left ear. He was in a stooping position at the time, engaged in the task which he set out to perform and slumped to the floor, death being almost instantaneous.

Inquest This Morning
Sheriff Ward Miller was notified and went to the farm where he conducted an investigation, but was satisfied that the shooting was accidental. Coroner Frank M. Banker conducted an inquest over the body this morning at 9:30 at the Preston mortuary.

Heatherington related the entire incident before the jury, stating that he and Kenneth had planned to go to the neighbors to shoot pigeons, and that the latter went to the barn to straighten the ram rod in a vice. "I stepped into the barn and he was stooping over straightening the rod. I saw the gun, an old 22 caliber rifle, lying on the bench and picked it up. I had no sooner taken hold of the gun, then it went off and I saw Kenneth drop to the floor."

Frances Marshall, step-sister of Kenneth, was present with him at the time of the accident and in a statement to Coroner Banker this morning, corroborated the story told by Heatherington. The jury returned a verdict of death due to accidental shooting.

Funeral Tomorrow
The deceased was born in Dixon, October 22, 1914 and is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Marshall, three step-sisters, Frances, Noma and Margaret. Funeral services will be conducted from the home of Mrs. Laura Seibert 511 West Third street tomorrow afternoon at 1:30. Rev. Lloyd W. of flying to his credit. Originally it had been intended that Julius Johannpeter, another pilot, was to bring the pictures from Little Rock to St. Louis, but Smith decided, after coming in from Houston, to carry his cargo, consigned to the St. Louis Globe Democrat and a news picture service, the remainder of the way to St. Louis.

WAS PIONEER PILOT

Springfield, Ill., July 2.—(AP)—Leslie H. Smith was Springfield's pioneer exponent of aviation having lived here for six years prior to his work with the Robertson Aircraft Corporation. Several residents of Springfield were taught to fly by the air mail pilot.

Smith's friends here disclosed that he met his death in the very section he left six years ago because the terrain was not adapted to flying in that it does not afford adequate areas for forced landings. His career as a flyer began when he was a boy. He had rigged up a glider and was about to "take off" from the summit of a cliff near his home when his father caught him. His father then made arrangements for him to learn aviation under a Captain Weber, now an instructor at Marshall.

FOG HAMPER'S RELIEF

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, July 2.—(AP)—Fog hampering the rescue efforts of seaplanes, a Russian ice breaker today was slowly forging its way northward to take five members of the crew of the Italia and a Swedish airman off an ice uoe.

The breaking up of the ice while it added to the peril of the castaways also increased their chances of rescue. Flyers turned back by fog reported that a strong wind from the east had opened up wide canals. The Russian icebreaker Krassin passed the eightieth parallel and was making its way through a loosened ice pack off West Spitzbergen. There was hope that it would reach the scene of the Italia disaster north of Fovyn Island sometime today.

The two Italian seaplanes piloted by Majors Maddalena and Penzo and the Swedish flying boat Upland tried to fly to the marooned men yesterday. They ran into a heavy fog near Cape Leigh Smith to the south of the survivors and were forced to turn back. WHEN SUCCESS IS POOR.

John Lunsman, St. Louis junkyard keeper, died the other day at the age of 86, leaving a fortune of slightly more than $250,000.

For long years he had lived a life of privation, engaged in mean tasks, depriving himself of pleasure, comfort, decent surrounding, friendships, devoting himself solely to the task of saving money. He had succeeded; his quarter of a million dollars attests it.

Yet even in America, where money is placed on the highest of pinnacles, it would be hard to find many people to agree that the old chap had led an enviable or admirable life.

You can get about what you want out of life if you care to pay the price. You can use life as the means to an end, subordinating everything in it to the one thing you are seeking, making every act have reference to your goal; and, like the old St. Louis junk dealer, you will be successful.

Or you can look on life as something of an end in itself. You can view it as an experience; something that can be made to yield richness and fragrance from first to last. If you do that you will have time for little diversions along the way—time for the experience of love, friendship, devotion, self-sacrifice, fidelity and courage. Those are the things that often have to be thrown overboard if one has too much singleness of purpose. But they are, in the main, the things that make life worth living.

Old John Lunsman had 86 years and $250,000 when he died; yet, for all that, he can hardly be said really to have lived at all. He had his goal and he gained it, but you could not find anyone to say that it was worth the price he paid. And while few people sacrifice as much to get as little as he did, his case is nevertheless a valuable object lesson.

There is too much of a tendency to regard material success as the sole criterion by which life can be judged. It would be fine to be Henry Ford, no doubt; yet, beyond question, there are mechanics in Henry Ford's own factories, salesmen in his own salesrooms, who have had more honest enjoyment out of life than Ford has had.

We need to be a little bit less in earnest about life. Too much looking to the future is apt to lead to an ignoring of the present. There is something to be said for the wisdom of the grasshopper as opposed to the wisdom of the ant.

THE SAFE FOURTH.

With Independence Day at hand the old question of a Safe and Sane Fourth is in the air again.

Much progress has been made in the last decade or so in regard to the promiscuous use of fireworks. Most cities now have ordinances forbidding the sale of such things.

Exploding noisy firecrackers on the Fourth of July is essentially an uncivilized way of celebrating the nation's birthday. It is, moreover, very dangerous, as hospital authorities, who each year see children die in agony from lockjaw, can tell you. Eventually we probably will have to have state-wide regulations covering the sale of fireworks.

ADVERTISING AND FAILURES.

A Chicago advertising man, after studying business failures in 34 leading cities, announces that 84 per cent of the firms that went under were not newspaper advertisers.

That little story points its own lesson. The world may very well make a beaten path to your door if you are manufacturing a better mousetrap than your neighbor, but first of all it has to know that you are doing it. The business head who thinks he can get along without advertising is trying to live in an outworn era.

George Remus, former Cincinnati bootlegger, has gone to Chicago to sue for property left by the wife he killed. It is to be hoped Chicago will not permit any miscarriage of justice in Mr. Remus' case.

We called on a Republican friend of ours the other night. His radio hasn't been working since the night of Claude Bowers' keynote speech in Houston.

These red golf balls are bound to be a failure. What player ever would be able to find his ball after missing a two-foot putt?

Department of Agriculture figures show the national spring pig crop about 7 per cent under that of 1927. That is encouraging.

THE ANYMITE STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

Inside the cage the Tines stood, and Copy said, "My, this is good. I'm going to sit right down and take a good long nap and rest." So down he sat upon the floor, and soon began to loudly snore. It wasn't very long till he was joined by all the rest.

With all the Tines sound asleep, the monkeys watched, but didn't peep. Then, one by one they went outside and closed the big cage door. It seemed their plan had worked out slick and they had pulled a clever trick. They knew what they had led the Tines in the queer cage for.

All through the night they sat nearby, and now and then they'd yawn and sigh, but each one stayed awake until the sun came up at dawn. And then they hid behind a tree. When Scouty 'woke, he shouted "Gee, I guess we're left here all alone. The monkeys all have gone." "Come, let's go out into the air. We soon will find if they are there."

Then he tried the door. Of course he found it locked. "Oh we are prisoners," he cried. "I don't think we can get outside. The little monkeys have trapped us, 'cause they have the exit blocked."

Then lots of chattering reached their ears, and rather added to their fears. The monkeys ran before the cage and started quite a row. "Hey, let us out," wee Clowny said. But every monkey shook his head. "I wonder," sighed scared Carpy, "Just what they are up to now."

The Tines watched the monkeys a while. Then Scouty broke out in a smile. "They're going to take us for a ride. Perhaps 'tis all in play." Then, as the monkeys gathered 'round the cage moved slowly out the ground. "Where-ever we are going," Copy cried, "We're surely on our way."

(An explorer comes to the Tines' rescue in the next story.)

MARYE and "MOM" Their Letters

BY RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Mom, Dear:

I'm sorry I can't come home to you protecting wing now, but that doesn't seem to fit into my present plans. I have several plans up my sleeve, and I must make some decisions very soon.

I've decided to stay two weeks longer with Madame Elise—Jane and I are both going to. Then Jane is sailing for Europe, to buy some of the decorations for her new shop, and to look over the collections, and get her bearings before she gets into the business for herself.

If I will go into the shop with her she will take me with her and we can work together from now on. That would be a load of fun, I think, and I shouldn't mind six weeks in Paris at all.

Alan wants to take a month's vacation, and is willing to go anywhere I want to, on land or sea. His idea is a little jaunt in Canada, with a week or so in Quebec, then on to Lake Louise, Banff and the west coast. That wouldn't be so difficult to bear, either.

Strange as it may seem to you—you who believe that I must be neglecting my home and my husband since I am working—Alan and I really get along much better than we ever have before.

And much of it, I think, is because with regular hours for both of us to work, our playtime more nearly corresponds. I used to sleep late every morning, play around in the afternoon, and by the time Alan came home in the evening, I was just ready for some sort of amusement. I couldn't understand why he didn't feel like dancing all night.

Now I leave in the morning about the same time he does, and by the time we meet again, we are both ready for a quiet, leisurely dinner. Perhaps we then take a spin through the park in the car, or join some friends, but we are about ready for home when the midnight hour approaches.

TELEPHONE RESPONDS TO KIND TREATMENT

A desk telephone should always be held upright. When tipped forward or backward, the voice does not carry so well over the wires because the little carbon granules in the transmitter are disturbed. Better results are obtained when the instrument is left on the table or desk upon which it rests.

The intricate mechanism of the telephone can also be upset by banging the receiver down on the hook instead of replacing it carefully, while the twisting of the cord may injure it so as to ultimately interfere with transmission.

EAGLE ATTACKS MAN

Bar Harbor, Me.—An American sea eagle is being mounted at Bangor for the Lafayette National Park. It was killed with an ax by Raymond Hanscom of Hull Cove when the bird attacked him while he was driving a truck on the high road near here. According to Hanscom's story, the bird alighted on the windshield and attacked him when he tried to dislodge it. Hanscom's face was seriously lacerated before he finally subdued the bird.

MOTT RESIGNS AS HEAD OF NATIONAL Y.M.C.A. YESTERDAY

Will Become President of National Missionary Council Soon

New York, July 2—After forty years of service as head of the Young Men's Christian Association in the United States, Dr. John R. Mott, internationally known religious worker and General Secretary of the National Council of that organization, has submitted his resignation to take effect in October in order to become President of the International Missionary Council. The announcement was made yesterday by Judge Adrian Lyon, Chairman of the General Board of the Young Men's Christian Associations of the United States.

In giving up his association with the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Mott is enlarging the field of endeavor which has so long claimed him. At the same time he will continue as President of the World's Alliance of the Young Men's Christian Associations, thus influencing the policy and program of work for boys and young men throughout the world. In his new capacity he will develop the plans outlined at the Eastside meeting of the International Missionary Council at which he presided this year in Jerusalem and which was attended by Christian leaders of fifty-one nations.

In his years with the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Mott has performed many notable services. During the World War he was Executive Secretary of the War Work Council of the Y. M. C. A., an organization which was entrusted with the expenditure of nearly $200,000,000 for the Army and Navy of the United States, the soldiers of the Allied Armies, and millions of prisoners of war. In recognition of this work Dr. Mott received from his own government the Distinguished Service Medal as well as decorations from Italy, France, Poland, Greece, and Japan.

Association Expanded.
In the early days of his work with the Young Men's Christian Association Dr. Mott founded the World's Student Christian Federation, which today has branches in three thousand and colleges and universities in more than forty countries. Under his guidance the Y. M. C. A. of America has been extended to over thirty nations in Asia, Africa, Latin America and, since the war, in Europe. His work has taken him on several world journeys.

In the letter to the General Board of the National Council of the Young Men's Christian Associations, in which he submits his resignation, Dr. Mott writes:

"Through all the years I have emphasized the central obligation of the Association to serve the churches and loyally to respond to their call. It has been made unmistakably plain to me that, in addition to any service I may have been privileged to render the Church of Christ through the Association in other channels, this recent authoritative call of the leaders of the churches has come to me under such circumstances as to constitute a clear mandate."

Following his resignation Dr. Mott will embark on an extended tour of the world after which his headquarters will be in New York and Geneva, Switzerland.

GOV. SMITH WILL MAKE HIS FIRST SPEECH JULY 4th

Democratic Nominee to be the Main Speaker at Tammany Meeting

BY W. W. CHAPLIN

Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, July 2—(AP)—Governor Alfred E. Smith was in New York today for some informal conferences at which he will thrash out the details of his campaign for the presidency with a few close friends.

The first meeting of the national Democratic committee is not until July 11 but it is generally believed that before that time the Governor will have decided exactly what course he will follow and will merely inform the committee of his decisions.

Those close to the Governor say that he intends to decide all important matters relative to the campaign himself, and that the National committee will follow his directions rather than act in an advisory capacity.

The Governor came here last night boarding at Albany, the special train on which several members of his family were returning from Houston with delegates. An enthusiastic crowd cheered his arrival at Grand Central Terminal. He went immediately to his suite in the Biltmore.

Only Fifteen Speeches

He has already decided to limit his two months campaign to about fifteen speeches in various parts of the country. They will all be broadcast, and there will be no back platform talks to station crowds as the campaign train moves from one chosen city to another.

There will probably be one speech in this city, one in New Jersey, three in New England, one each in Detroit, St. Louis and Denver, and the rest in the border states with one possible appearance in a west coast city.

The fifteen speeches will all be different, but they will be alike in that they will deal with easily understandable problems stated so that they are understandable and appealing to the multitude. Foreign affairs and other matters which do not as a rule directly touch the life of the "common man" will be passed over as not too good campaign material.

Smith supporters feel that the Governor has the gift of making people who have never seen him and who know nothing of his political policies except in relation to one or two outstanding matters "think they know him."

Many Call Him "Al"

They point to the thousands of telegrams and letters which have come in since the nomination, hundreds of which call the Governor "Al" and address him in terms of familiarity.

"Most of these people have never seen the Governor," one man close to the nominee said today, "but they've heard about him and something in his personality has caught their imagination. He has got himself across to them somehow so that they feel friendly and seem to actually think they know him personally. There's a big vote of that kind going to Smith."

The Governor's first speech since his nomination will be at the Tammany Society's annual Fourth of July celebration.

Advertisements in the New York

Newspapers announce that "patriotic speeches" will be delivered by the Governor and Senators Copeland and Wagner. "All citizens of the United States and lovers of Americanism are cordially invited," the advertisement says. The speeches are to be broadcast.

Invited by Klan

A telegram guaranteed the Governor and friends "absolute safety" and gave as the reason for the invitation "the sincere desire of the leaders and members of the Ku Klux Klan to know you more intimately, to see you personally and to hear your presentation of the great issues of the present presidential campaign."

Smith circles were much interested today in the appeal of Josephus Daniels to southern Democrats to support Governor Smith, but to "stand in Congress like a stone wall against any recommendation that Smith as President would make to modify the prohibition enforcement act."

Chicago Schools Go Year Without Head

Chicago—(AP)—One of the world's largest school systems, that of Chicago, has completed a year's operation without the services of a superintendent. The cause is traced back to the 1927 municipal election, at which William Hale Thompson was chosen mayor.

Thompson promised if elected he would remove William McAndrew, superintendent of schools, because, the mayor asserted, he was pro-British. McAndrew was suspended shortly after Thompson was installed, and after a trial lasting half the school year, the school board voted that he be dismissed.

During the school year the work of the superintendent has been in the hands of an assistant, but at no time was there an acting superintendent so titled. McAndrew, whose contract expired in January this year, refused to accept salary during the period of his suspension, so that the city was saved this expense. Suits have been filed by the former superintendent, however, seeking, in one instance, to collect $250,000 from the mayor for alleged libel.

The superintendent-less year was marked by the largest attendance in the history of Chicago schools and by the largest number of graduates from high schools.

Seemed Like Night in Chicago at 9:30

Chicago, July 2—(AP)—Henry L. Cox, Chicago's chief weather forecaster, may be recalled from Europe if his staff takes further liberties with the elements. The weather dispatcher apparently misread the clock today for at 9:30 a. m. the city was as dark as at 9:30 p. m. A black cloud shrouded the city in darkness so deep that motorists lighted their lamps and lights were turned on in every building. When the pall lifted a terrific downpour of rain began, punctured by sharp electrical displays.

HERE'S A NEWS ITEM

What is a NEWS ITEM? In letter golf, it's a per six. Perhaps you can beat the solution on page 9 if you have a nose for news.

THE RULES

1—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEN, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.

2—You can change only one letter at a time.

3—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each pump. Elong words and abbreviations don't count.

4—The order of letters cannot be changed.

One solution is printed on page 9.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
BETIE LOU WARD, on the eve of her wedding to ROD BRYER, receives a paper knife as a gift from LILA MARSH—the prettiest girl in town—who had turned Rod down because he was not wealthy.

The feel of the metal chilled Bertie Lou, and she thought that it was a dagger to pierce her happiness. She flashed across her mind so that her dreaming anticipation turned to miserable foreboding. But she courageously resolves not to be jealous of Rod's past love affair. His future is in her keeping.

She is beautiful in her wedding dress, but the joyful singing in her heart ceased just before the ceremony when Bertie Lou accidentally overhears one of her bridesmaids ask another if she thinks the bride likes being second choice.

Dazedly she stands before the altar, but the words of the minister end and Rod whispers "My wife" with a world of wonder and adoration in his eyes. Bertie Lou knows that she would rather be second choice than to give him up.

She smiles sweetly and ignores the insult when Lila gives the groom a long kiss with the remark, "I'll take my last kiss now while I can get it," and offers to arrange their new apartment because she knows Rod's taste so well.

They spend an ideal honeymoon and Bertie Lou almost forgets the shadows cast by the predatory ex-sweetheart until they return and find Lila in their new home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER III

BETIE LOU approached her new home without a hint from the other girls that Lila had remained behind when they left to go to the station to meet the returning honeymooners.

Much to their dismay Lila had descended upon them in the flat an hour or two before train time and had insisted upon fulfilling what she called her promise to Rod.

She rearranged everything she could move unassisted. The girls argued and protested. But Lila had a way of coming out on top. She professed to know more about what Rod would like than anyone else possibly could.

Mrs. Ward's lips were drawn thin in suppressed anger. But she kept silent because she did not wish to make a scene and start people talking.

Her mind was busy turning over ideas for covering Bertie Lou's discomfort when she found Lila in her home. For Lila had announced her intention of staying to help with the curtains and Mrs. Ward suspected that nothing short of plain eviction would get her out.

WHEN the girls were ready to go to the station she told Lila that she really would not need her help. It was useless, however, as she had known it would be. Lila refused to go with them. "You can never get those rods up alone," she declared with a great show of consideration. "In fact I think Marcella had better stay and help me."

"Oh, no," Mrs. Ward said quickly. "Marcella will want to go to the station." She thought if she was left alone with Lila she might find something to say to the girl that would make her conscious of her bad taste in coming to the apartment at this time.

But Lila had suggested Marcella's remaining because she suspected what was on Mrs. Ward's mind. Marcella was utterly unaware of being a pawn. "I really haven't finished putting the kitchen dishes back in the cupboard, Mrs. Ward," she said in an undecided tone. "I guess I'd better stay."

Mrs. Ward offered no further objections. If Lila was bent on making trouble, she would make it. And all the more so she were put out. The arrival of the bridal couple in front of the grocery store was heralded by laughing shouts and loud hollings. Mrs. Ward ran to a window in the living room to see for herself that it really was Rod and Bertie Lou.

A swarm of friends piled out of the cars behind that occupied by the bride and groom and literally swept the young couple across the sidewalk and up the flight of stairs to the second floor of the new brick building.

Mrs. Ward hurried out on the landing to meet them. Marcella was before her but Lila had stayed behind. Bertie Lou saw her mother coming toward her and shouted: "Hey, Mums, dig me out!"

Bertie Lou's friends made way for her mother and Bertie Lou rushed into the dear familiar arms like a homing bird.

BETIE LOU reached up for a kiss. After it Mrs. Ward laid her cheek on Bertie Lou's—her lips buried in the girl's rich brown curls. "Honey, listen. Lila is here," she whispered.

Bertie Lou stiffened slightly. Then she flung her arms around her mother's neck, kissed her on the nose and broke away, apparently happy as she had been a moment before. The bevy of well-wishers swept her on into her new home.

"Isn't it lovely, Bertie Lou? We all helped Rod's mother pick out the rugs! Too bad she isn't here!"

Bertie Lou listened through it all, exclaiming, "enough, satisfying them. But to her mother's ears her voice rang just a shade hollow. Mrs. Ward watched the dining room door, dreading the moment when Lila should choose to make her presence known.

Finally, as they were about to lead Bertie Lou into the dining room, Lila appeared in the doorway. "Welcome home," she cried gayly and came up to kiss Bertie Lou.

The girls were watching Bertie Lou. She hadn't turned a hair when she saw Lila. She had let herself be kissed without any evident unwillingness and if she was not warm to Lila she was not cold either. Everyone was left guessing.

"I've started some coffee for you," Lila sang out to Rod as he moved away from her to follow Bertie Lou who had gone into the dining room. Mrs. Ward turned upon her. So that was what had kept her from showing herself! "Coffee," she echoed. "On a hot day like this?"

Lila replied that she intended to ice it. "Rod likes lemonade," she added, apropos of the refreshment Mrs. Ward had provided for the occasion. Mrs. Ward's eyes blazed but she was glad that Bertie Lou and the other girls were out of hearing. She resolved that there should be no coffee served, iced or otherwise, unless Bertie Lou so wished.

She went swiftly into the dining room and up to Bertie Lou. "Shall we make iced coffee for Rod?" she asked in a strained voice.

Just then one of the girls opened the kitchen door and Bertie Lou caught a whiff of fragrant Mocha and Java. It was a gift from the grocer downstairs. She thought that her mother had already gone to the trouble of making it and was anxious to know if Rod would like it.

"He'd love it, Mums, if it isn't too much trouble." Mrs. Ward breathed a sigh of relief, thankful that Bertie Lou hadn't been in ignorance of Rod's taste for iced coffee. It would have been awkward to dispose of it if Bertie Lou had said not to have it. Especially since Rod liked it.

LILA said nothing more about the coffee. She didn't much care whether the others knew anything about it or not. Her sole object in tormenting Bertie Lou was to bite on a sore tooth. She was half sorry for herself, half angry with Rod and half hateful of Bertie Lou.

The rest drank lemonade and consumed to the last crumb the three-colored marble cake Mrs. Ward had baked. Marcella suggested washing the glasses and plates but Bertie Lou's mother refused to let them.

They sensed a nervous tension in her manner and it finally dawned upon them that a welcoming home party should be brief to be successful.

LILA was the last to go. "Coming?" she said to Mrs. Ward. The latter answered with a curt "No."

"Oh, don't be a comic strip mother-in-law," Lila told her. Mrs. Ward ignored her impudence by turning away from the door where Lila stood and deliberately lingered to keep Bertie Lou standing, plainly tired and travel-stained.

Elks Stop Paying Insurance on Art

Galesburg, Ill.—(AP)—In a musty room of a local club, a $50,000 art collection has been stored away, stripped from the walls where it had hung for 14 years because its caretakers no longer will pay the insurance costs.

The collection is the property of George S. Dole of Galesburg and was assembled by his father, James H. Dole, former millionaire grain dealer of Chicago.

Fourteen years ago the son presented the collection to the local Elks club, and in appreciation the club voted him a life membership. The 50 valuable canvases were hung upon the club walls, where they remained until a short time ago.

This year, officers of the club decided that insurance costs on the collection were more than the club could stand and asked that the canvases be removed. They were taken to another club building and stored in a dark room where they now await disposal.

The collection, it is said, represents several exceptionally valuable paintings. The most prized canvas is a fishing boat scene done by Frank M. Boggs, and prominently exhibited at the World's Fair at Chicago in 1893. Brissot, French animal painter, Anna C. Shaw, first woman admitted to membership in the Chicago Art Institute, Winslow Homer, Charles F. Daubigny, Moran, noted English painter, Arthur Parton, Walter MeEwen, Harry Thompson, Frederick Warren Freer, Fred Oller, German figure painter, J. Francis Murphy, landscape painter and Walter Snirlow winner of many medals for his painting and designing are among the artists represented in the collection. Mr. Dole's father collected the canvasses when he was vice-president of the Art Institute from its organization in 1879 until his death in 1902. For years, he was president of the Chicago Academy of Designs.

The Best Way to Health

Dr. McCoy, Los Angeles specialist, will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of The Dixon Evening Telegraph. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

GREEN CORN

Green corn is one of the few starchy foods that can be used freely during the hot weather. It is a wholesome and appetizing addition to our menus, and may be used as the principal part of the meal. It is most appetizing when the kernels are plump and well filled, yet soft and milky inside.

Since green corn deteriorates rapidly after being picked, it should be eaten as soon as possible. It is well to choose those ears, the husks of which are bright and fresh looking.

Green corn contains a large amount of soft pliable cellulose which is only partly digested in the intestines, but has much value because of this fact, since it supplies a bulk which is filling and non-irritating. Bran is often recommended for this purpose, but there is a great danger of the bran being too scratchy and thus further irritating the intestines.

It is apparent that constipation is often caused from using too much bran in an effort to cure constipation. Those who are constantly affected with this disorder will find that green corn would be of great help to them. The intestines of those who are constipated are usually ballooned and entirely out of their normal shape, consequently a large amount of bulky food must be used to properly fill out the intestines, so that normal peristaltic movements will be promoted and this disease of civilization, which is so responsible for creating other diseases, may be overcome.

It is interesting to know that green corn contains a much larger proportion of mineral salts than is found in cornmeal or in dried field corn. Its potassium alone is four times as plentiful as the amount found in ordinary cornmeal.

Green corn is listed as a starchy food, but when young the starch seldom reaches a percentage of one-fifth of the total bulk. Whole cornmeal is 68 percent starch, while green corn is something under 20 percent starch, giving us a carbohydrate food which is very palatable and yet does not burden the system with excessive amounts of starch.

It is quite safe for anyone troubled with constipation to use corn on the cob once a day during the summer time, always combining the corn with some of the green vegetables, such as asparagus, string beans, also a few of the salad vegetables such as celery or young carrots. Avoid acid fruits, including tomatoes, which are really an acid fruit, near the "corn" meal.

My daughter who has recently passed her botany examination, has just reminded me that corn is really listed botanically as a fruit. Yes, that is true, but we do not list corn that way as far as practical dietetics is concerned.

The average person can use three or four small ears of corn at a meal with none but the most beneficial results. Corn is best cooked by boiling in slightly salted water or by baking in the husk. The latter method gives it a very delicate, nut-like flavor. Before baking, one would have to pull back the husks to clean the corn, after which the husks may be refilled and the ends twisted or tied together.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question—S. G. J. writes: "Please tell me how to reduce the upper arm."

Answer—Any kind of arm exercises will reduce the fat on your arms. The best ones to take are those requiring a reasonable amount of muscular tension and, at the same time, these exercises should be used rapidly and with vigor. Probably the best plan would be to purchase one of the "chest weight exercises" which you can secure from any sporting goods store. This apparatus is attached to the wall, and the exercises are taken by raising and lowering weights which are attached to handles by ropes running over pulleys. Secure a booklet describing how to take these exercises. This booklet can usually be obtained at the same store where the apparatus is sold.

Question—Mrs. I. H. asks: "Is it ever advisable to use any kind of breadstuff with a meal containing either potatoes or meat?"

Answer—Genuine whole wheat crackers, or muffins may be used in a limited quantity with either a protein (meat) or starchy foods (potatoes) by those in good health. This is an exception to the general rules regulating the use of proteins and starches.

Question—Mrs. L. M. G. asks: "Is there any cure of incipient tuberculosis?"

Answer—Incipient tuberculosis is curable if the proper methods are used; even advanced cases can usually be cured if every habit of the patient can be controlled. If you will

PRESIDENT TALKS POLITICS TODAY WITH SEC. WORK

Also Accepted the Cabinet Member's Resignation from Post

Superior, Wis., July 2—(AP)—Expecting the resignation of Secretary of the Interior Department during the course of his stay at the summer White House, President Coolidge had made all arrangements to day to entertain the chairman of the National Republican committee on a one-day stay at Cedar Island Lodge.

Mr. Coolidge had planned not to come to his office today and instructions had been given for his guest to be taken to the executive residence immediately upon reaching here.

Secretary Work by coming to Superior, was given an opportunity to discuss with Mr. Coolidge the political situation and the campaign plans of the Republican party, and to sound out the Chief Executive as to the extent, if any, to which he will be willing to participate in the pre-election activities of his party.

To Confer With Good
Mr. Work, in addition, had the chance to consult with James M. Good, pre-convention manager of Secretary Hoover, who came last night to Superior from his summer home not far from here on purpose for such a conference. The cabinet officer, while passing through Chicago, yesterday, intimated that Good might not be able to assume the duties of western manager of the Hoover campaign. Good himself in Superior confirmed this report saying that he had been trying to get out of accepting the responsibilities of such a post as they constituted too heavy a burden upon him.

President Coolidge so far has given no consideration to possible activities on his part in the coming campaign. He has proceeded on the theory of awaiting more definite crystallization of the political situation before coming to any decision.

Dr. Work it is understood, also had several departmental matters for the consideration of Mr. Coolidge. A decision as to Dr. Work's successor was expected to be reached by the Chief Executive soon. In the meantime, however, Mr. Coolidge was represented as awaiting for the cabinet post to be actually vacant before making up his mind as to how to fill it.

Family Reunion

Injection of politics into the tranquil atmosphere of Cedar Island Lodge followed closely upon the complete reunion of the Coolidge household to which both Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were known to have looked forward greatly. John Coolidge arrived yesterday from Northampton after graduating from Amherst College and after a short visit at the home of Gov. Trumbull of Connecticut.

John Coolidge's first appearance in public here was made immediately after his arrival at the Lodge when he was taken by his father and mother to church at Brule.

The boy, now grown much taller than even Mr. Coolidge, shared in a warm demonstration which followed the service. John Taylor, the blind lay preacher of the Brule church, conducted the service as usual. He good wishes for his approaching birthday which falls on July 4, and then preached a sermon choosing as his text the twenty-sixth chapter of the gospel according to St. Matthew dealing with the Garden of Gethsemane.

Dental Clinics are Part of S. A. Program

Chicago—(AP)—Working with medical and dental associations of Chicago, The Salvation Army has instituted a series of free medical and dental clinics in Chicago as a phase of the Army's social service activity here for 1928.

In the first five months of the year, the clinic at 719 North State street cared for more than 1400 patients, a report of the Army said today. At the second clinic maintained at the Army's South Side Social Settlement, 796 medical cases were cared for and dental services were rendered to nearly 2,500 people since January, 1928.

The clinics were established by the Army in cooperation with Chicago dental and medical associations, the leaders of which agreed to contribute a year's free service through their members. A rotation schedule allows each doctor and dentist to put an equal amount of time into the activity.

A staff of 16 doctors is maintained in the downtown clinic, some of whom are constantly on duty. Treatment is given for all general ailments, in addition to pre-natal service. A department of pediatrics for the care and feeding of infants also has been opened.

"There are no registration fees," the Army leaders said, "and needed medicines are dispensed absolutely without charge of any kind, making this what is said to be the only really free clinic in Chicago. In addition to the services of diagnosis and treatment, the clinic prescribes and supplies eye glasses, trusses, braces, and even artificial eyes to patients unable to afford such appliances. "Only registered physicians and dentists are employed and the clinics are not used for the purposes of study and experiment by medical students.

"An efficient system of investigation prevents imposition upon the clinic by persons able to afford private medical service and does away with any charge if indiscriminate philanthropy."

POOR LIL' FELLER
Wichita, Kas.—Sixteen years of married life proved too much for Amos E. Bryan. He recently sued for divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty, claiming that his wife, Annie L. Bryan, abused him. "She curses and abuses me, and threatens to kill me, as if she meant it," he said. "Twelve years ago she took a gun after me at Monroe, La., and in Burton she tried to kill me again."

Insuring Good Service

Good railway service is a matter of long planning ahead. Traffic requirements must be anticipated, and facilities must be developed to meet them. It takes time to raise money, to obtain delivery of cars and locomotives and to make additions of new trackage and other major improvements. That is why the character of railway service at any time is a reflection of the past condition of railway earning power.

The present excellence of railway service is an illustration. Between 1921 and 1926 the net return earned by the railroads as a whole, although short of the officially designated fair return, showed in the main a steady and encouraging improvement. On the strength of this improvement and the faith of investors that it would continue the railroads were able in the six years 1922-27 to invest approximately $5,000,000,000 in new facilities. Users of railway service are now reaping the cumulative benefit of these investments. In the same way the future adequacy of railway service depends upon the present adequacy of railway earning power.

If the recent downward trend in the net return earned by the railroads should continue, it is virtually certain to have a corresponding effect upon the quality of railway service. The railway expansion already attained might help to postpone this effect, but traffic will soon outgrow the capacity of present railway facilities. The growth of the country in both population and economic activity calls for a continuing expansion of railway capacity. Hence railway earning power must at all times be such as to encourage investment in railway securities and thus enable the railroads to maintain their progress.

Rates which insure the ability of the railroads to meet prospective demands for transportation are the cheapest premium for the best insurance the business of the country could have.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

LOWDEN LEADER SUPPORTS FARM PLANK OF FOES

Gov. McMullen of Neb-

Plank Satisfies

Chicago, July 2.—(AP)—The Chicago Daily Journal today printed a telegram from Adam A. McMullen, Republican Governor of Nebraska, and a leader of the Lowden agricultural group at the Republican National Convention, replying to a request from the newspaper for his opinion of the Agricultural plank in the Democratic platform adopted at the Houston convention. Gov. Mc-Mullen's reply follows:

"Answering your wire, the agricultural plank in the Democratic national platform is satisfactory to the farm organizations because it embodies specifically the provisions of the Mc-Nary-Haugen bill, although it does not use the term equalization fee.

"It provides first for a federal farm board as did the McNary-Haugen bill; second in the following language: 'Appropriate government aid to cooperative associations in the form of credit loans on a parity with the terms of loans authorized recently by the Government to air shipping.'"

"Third in the following language:
'We pledge the party to an honest in-deavor to solve this problem of the distribution of the cost of dealing with crop surpluses over the marketed units of the crops whose producers are benefited by such assistance, it provides for the equalization fee provision of the McNary-Haugen bill.

"The equalization fee provision of that bill simply planned a method whereby the farmer could distribute any surplus of crops produced at his own expense without governmental subsidy or bonus. That is the heart of the legislation the farmers demand.
It places the farming industry on a respectable business basis. This plank should have been incorporated in the Republican National platform as it would be in keeping with the fundamental doctrine of protection upon which the Republican party is founded.

"The Democratic party does not believe in the protective tariff and yet the agricultural plank of its platform extends the protective system to agriculture, no doubt on the theory that the protective system is a permanent economic institution.

Surgical Safety

of the Gorgas Memorial as part of its Better Health and Longer Life pro-orary president of the Memorial, which has been organized and en-the Gorgas Memorial are at 400 North

The layman can feel safe in the way the modern qualified surgeon cares for him. In years gone by when operations were done under surgically unclean conditions on account of undeveloped germ knowledge and ignorance of the dangers of pus, operations had a high death rate. At present the surgeon works with thoroughly scrubbed hands covered with sterilized rubber gloves, gowns and headgear, using only thoroughly sterilized instruments.

The patient is carefully prepared,
all organs are tested for their possible diseased conditions. Again, in order to make safety sure, the surgeon has each vital organ tested for its surgical efficiency in order to find out whether it can stand the strain of the necessary surgical operation. By this we mean that kidney, heart and circulation, and liver are tested to give the assurance that they are sufficiently strong to stand the strain of the necessary surgery. The urine is examined for albumin and casts; it is also examined for the presence of sugar. The information derived from a proper examination of a small amount of blood confirms this safety.
The blood pressure is taken and a careful rectal examination of chest and heart is made with the stethoscope. There are special appliances to carry these tests to more exact-ness.

When all the information is obtained, the patient can receive a guarantee that the conditions are properly set, and a good result will obtain in doing a certain operation. The surgeon and patient are satisfied that there is physical and organic efficiency in the vital organs.

Therefore, the world can thank the studious, careful research men and modern progressive medicine for the advancement in the development of surgical procedures. It is good to know that needed surgery can be given with a marked degree of safety and more exact results; that modern surgeon makes "safety safer."

CHAPTER XLVIII

VIRGINIA was awake when the telephone rang. It might have rung at any hour of the night or early morning and she would still have been awake to answer the call.

She hobbled stiffly over to the instrument, stiff from her long-held, rigid position.

She took down the receiver and put it to her ear. She almost collapsed like an exploded balloon when she heard the voice of the man who had called her.

Mr. Leigh!

He was coming right over!
Would she be down as soon as she could to see him? Virginia promised.

Conjectures were seething in her head like a whirlwind. Too many questions to put into the form of words.

In half an hour she was downstairs, held in the arms of a skinny giant and roundly kissed.

"Thought you could fool me, didn't you?" he teased her. "Just as if I never saw a wounded man or animal. Once I shot a doe.
After that I stuck to tigers. They'd have been glad to do the same to me."

"What are you talking about?"
Virginia exclaimed when she got her breath. "Oh, you don't know how glad I am you've come, that you're well enough to be here. I ... I need a friend now," she added weakly and flew back into his arms to sob there.

Fortunately it was too early for anyone to be sharing the parlor with them, but Virginia did not even think of the possibility of witnesses to the scene.

"Let's sit down and confide in each other," he suggested, leading her to a davenport.

"I knew something was wrong," he went on when Virginia hesitated to begin her story. "So I cabled up here to a lawyer I know. You see, Virginia, I had troubles of my own when I heard of your father's passing on, so I didn't do what I should have done. I ought to have found out who was handling his estate and told them of Richard's interest in my sugar plantation."

Virginia squeezed his hand.
"Father considered that only an expression of his gratitude to you for saving his life," she said.

"That's no reason why he should not benefit from it as I have. The sugar people have bought me out.
I'd have let go before if I'd known that Richard left you penniless."

Virginia smiled sadly. "I hope you haven't sacrificed your plantation for my sake," she said. "You see I am going to marry a very rich man—tomorrow, I presume."

Leigh noticed her eyes expand with terror and a tremor pass through the hand that lay in his.
Virginia had sought to speak calmly, dreading to have him know that nothing could make her happy. The poor thousands that he had sold his lands for were, like her own 12, useless to her now.

"There was a united gasp from Gardiner and Dr. Meyerling. Both had seen the check. They had been told that it was Richard Brew-ster's share of the sale of Leigh's plantation, but Virginia had resolutely refused to explain in advance her reason for wanting Dean there.

She had, merely said that she wished to repay a debt he said her father owed him and that he was her father's enemy.

"Turn it over," she directed. "I've endorsed it. There is the price of your silence."

"And I'll make it mine to see that you get the feel of a crack on the chin," Leigh informed the now thoroughly discomfited Dean, who was slinking toward the door.

When he was gone Virginia turned to "Oddly" Leigh, handed him the check and then spent a hurried 10 minutes in clearing up everything that still puzzled the other two.

"I went on the Agena's cruise, hoping Mr. Leigh could help me, but his place looked so neglected"
—she smiled at "Oddly"—"I thought it couldn't be worth anything ..."

"I know," he broke in. "When I got up I discovered

Watching the Big Scoreboard

BY HERBERT W. BARKER

While the Yankees lead their closest rivals in the American League by thirteen and a half games, and the Cards are ahead in the National by three and a half, most of the other clubs are battling desperately for positions at close to the leaders as can be secured. The standings, from second place down, show one or more shifts almost daily and threaten to continue to do so until the final curtain is rung down.

The Yankees yesterday removed what doubt, if any, remained as to their ability to beat the Athletics just about as often as they want to. Both ends of a double header went to the champions, 12 to 6 and 8 to 4. Lou Gehrig hit two home runs in the first game, his 17th and 18th of the season, and Tony Lazzeri duplicated the feat in the nightcap.

The St. Louis Browns failed to take advantage of this double reverse for the Athletics for they permitted Detroit to score five runs in the eighth inning and a 7 to 4 triumph at Detroit. The standing shows the Browns only two and a half games back of the A's.

George Burns' homer with two on in the sixth gave Cleveland the verdict over the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 2. The Indians announced the unconditional release of Garland Buckeye, mammoth right hander, who has failed to round into form this season.

Boston moved to within a single game of the fourth place Indians by taking Washington into camp twice, 2 to 1, and 7 to 1.

The National League program saw the Cardinals end all square after a double header with Donie Bush's Corsairs of Pittsburgh. Fred Russell blanked the Cards in the first game, 2 to 0. The Cards made four errors and were out 17 to 11 in the second but pulled it out of the fire, 8 to 6, chiefly because home runs by Frisch and Bottomley and five doubles were in their hit column. Bottomley's homer, his 16th of the season, put him in a tie with Hack Wilson of the Cubs for the individual league leadership in this department of the offensive.

Epps Rixey pitched the Cincinnati Reds back into third place with a 4 to 1 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Brooklyn dropped into fourth position two points ahead of the Cubs, when the Braves pounded Clark, Moss and McWeeny for 14 hits and nosed out the Robins, 8 to 7.

SPORT SLANTS

BY ALAN J. GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
New York, July 2—(AP)—The campaign of Olympic preparation that has been on all spring with considerable enthusiasm and vigor reaches the big climax this week at Philadelphia and Boston.

The prospects are for the most exciting battles ever waged for places on the American team, particularly among the eight-oared college crews at Philadelphia, Friday and Saturday as well as the track and field forces at Boston the same two days.

Two unbeaten crews, Yale and California, victors in the big college classics at New London and Poughkeepsie, will be foremost among the contenders on the Schuylkill, along with the Columbia eight that chased California all the way down the Hudson and also has the stuff to jump to the front this week.

Two of the greatest young sprinters the far west or southwest has turned out in some time, Frank Wykoff of California and Claude Bracey of Texas, will be in the spotlight at Harvard Stadium.

Nearly every event in which American final trials will be held as the basis for team selection carries possibilities of competition scarcely less interesting than will be expected at Amsterdam the end of July when the big events go on.

At Philadelphia, where special trials will be held for the few events not on the program at Boston, the 400-meter run will bring Barbuti and Spencer together again, as well as Taylor, Cuhel and Gibson in the 400 meter hurdles, Jim Stewart and Pat Elkins in the decathlon.

The broad jump will bring together Ed Hamm, Georgia Tech's sensational performer, in competition with the Olympic champion, Dehart Hubbard, for the first time. Hubbard is able to leap 25 feet while Hamm has jumped that far or further on four occasions this year.

Sabin Carr and Lee Barnes will have another whirl at vaulting, even if they have a common aim in view this time and need only exert themelves enough to clinch their places on the team.

Jole Ray is one of the few who hasn't anything to worry about in the struggle that will result in the selection of only 90 from a field of around 500 aspirants. Jole has clinched his place on the marathon squad and won't have any difficulty making the 10,000 meter team if he chooses to do so.

Wrestler's Second Wife is an Actress

Union City, N. J., July 2 (AP)—Wladek Zbyszko, Polish wrestler and younger brother of Stanislaus, was on his honeymoon today with Miss Stark, 18-year-old Broadway actress. They were married here Saturday by Mayor Charles Hohn. The bride promised to obey.

This is Zbyszko's second venture into matrimony. His first wife was Miss Amelia Diaz, 100 pounds, of Havana. He divorced her at Portland, Me., in 1924 charging cruelty.

Zbyszko has been one of the leading heavyweight wrestlers of the world for years. In 1922 when Stanislaus announced he was ready to retire he attempted to pass the title on to his younger brother. It didn't take, but Wladek has been considered one of the leading contenders for the title now held by Ed (Strangler) Lewis. He has not been particularly active the last few years, however.

Ignace Paderewski, noted pianist, is his godfather.

Wimbledon, England, July 2—(AP)—Henry Cochet, sharpshooting French musketeer, advanced to the semi-finals today in defense of the Wimbledon men's singles by conquering the sturdy young American tennis star, John Hennessey, in four sets, 6-4, 6-1, 8-7, 6-3.

Baby Bears
Bears, when born, weigh from nine to twelve ounces—about one eighth or ninth the size of a human infant. They attain a weight of as much as 1500 pounds. The cubs are born during the hibernation of the mother bear, and while she is still taking her long winter doze. They remain in the hibernating den or cave for as long as three months before coming out.

The Frog

The frog, poor fellow, seems to be adapted to all manner of queer description. A correspondent writes "in behalf of the frog" He recites the description of the frog credited to a young Norwegian not long in this country. Here it is.

"What a wonderful bird the frog are! When he sit he stand, almost! When he hop he fly, almost! He ain't got no sense, hardly! He ain't got no tail, hardly, either! When he sit he sit on what he ain't got, almost!"

Indirect Fire.

A certain traveller in Alaska, armed with a high powered big game rifle, found it necessary to shoot some ducks for food. Finding that the bullets nearly made a total loss of the ducks when he hit them, he solved his problem by selecting only ducks that were sitting on a sand bar, and then shooting, not directly at the ducks but into the sand near them. The spattered sand, struck by the high velocity bullet, killed enough for his use.
